LIONS, TIGERS, AND BEARS! OH MY!

Betsy DeVos, the nominee for U.S. Secretary of Education, said at her confirmation hearing that she would support President-elect Donald Trump if he decides to end the gun-free school zones. When asked if guns have any place in or around schools, she responded that it was best left to locales and states to decide. However, she did reference a school in rural Wyoming that might need a gun in the school to protect against grizzly bears. What?!? According to Ms. DeVos, that poor school had to build a special fence to protect its students from the bears. Is she really saying that it would be better to just arm the staff rather than build a fence? That strange logic and her lack of knowledge about current issues in education and the historic role the federal government has played in establishing guidelines to insure access and equity for all children were evident in other answers that the nominee gave during her more than three-hour hearing on Capitol Hill on January 17.

The hearing was contentious and broke along party lines, with the Committee on Health, Education, Labor and Pensions (HELP) chairperson Senator Lamar Alexander (R-TN) allowing each member one round of questions that could last only five minutes. Republicans expressed strong support for her, while Democrats voiced concern in several areas. Senators sought to clarify DeVos' position, not only on gun-free zones, but also on private school voucher programs, which she has consistently endorsed. She said she wanted to give parents the opportunity to enroll their children in a high-quality alternative if their public school was troubled, unsafe, or not a good fit. (What does not a good fit mean? Too many poor children, immigrant children, children of color?) Even though she said during the hearing that she would be a strong advocate for great public schools, she has previously declared that public education is a dead end and her immediate position prior to the nomination was chairperson of the American Federation for Children, which supports private school vouchers and other alternatives to traditional public education.

Given Trump's campaign rhetoric vilifying immigrants, Muslims, and others, committee members were concerned about DeVos' position on civil rights, particularly as it applied to students with disabilities or LGBT students. While she said that every child deserves to be free from discrimination, when pressed, Ms. DeVos' stock answer was to leave decision-making to the states. The executive director of GLSEN, a national advocacy group for gay, lesbian, and transgender students, said, "While we are relieved to hear DeVos rejecting the dangerous and thoroughly discredited practice of conversion therapy [for gay individuals] that her family has previously supported, it was chilling to hear DeVos dodge questions about whether she would keep essential protections for transgender students, and basically refer all other civil rights protections for students with disabilities, students of color, and religious minority students 'back to the states.'"

DEVOS (Cont.)

Sen. Patty Murray (D-WA) told the candidate, "I have major concerns with how you have spent your career and fortune fighting to privatize public education and gut investments in public schools," reflecting the general concerns of most Democrats on the HELP Committee. Other groups voiced concern about her lack of understanding about federal statutes governing special education and her general belief that vouchers are a cure-all for what ails public education and she is the first education secretary in the department's 35-year history to be opposed by the Leadership Conference on Civil and Human Rights. Yet, former Florida Governor Jeb Bush said that Betsy DeVos is a hero of the education reform movement, showing that school choice is the answer for at-risk students who are the biggest victims of failing K-12 schools.

LAUSD Board President Steve Zimmer wrote in an article on his website about the King Day Parade and the LAUSD All City Band, "Betsy DeVos' agenda, her history, her philanthropy, and her public statements are about the 'some kids, not all kids' agenda. DeVos' philosophy of funding vouchers and charter schools has caused real and significant injury to the most vulnerable children. Her outspoken disdain for teachers is the antithesis of the family and teamwork spirit that drives the All City Band. DeVos' views are out of step with even strong supporters of education reform. The extreme of her private sector, market-based approach to public education make her a poor match to lead our nation's public school system. DeVos' lack of experience makes her completely unqualified to be Secretary of Education. DeVos' record insults our leaders, our school leaders, our parents, and our kids."

Well said, President Zimmer. The committee will vote on Ms. DeVos nomination on January 24, 2017, and we anticipate that she will be confirmed. So, get your guns ready, the lions, tigers, and bears are loose and it is open season on public education.

HEALTH BENEFITS FAQ—
*DEPENDENT AUDITS – A COST-SAVING STRATEGY THAT WORKS

How successful have the dependent audits been?

Benefits Administration began its continuous cycle of dependent eligibility audits in August 2013. Since that time, 15 audit phases, plus voluntary drops, have yielded the removal of more than 6,000 ineligible dependents, enabling the District to avoid nearly $20 million in premium payments.

Will there be future audits?

Yes, because of the huge cost avoidance, the District will continue audits. Phase 17 begins February 1, 2017, and will target active employees.

What are some reasons that “ineligible” dependents remain enrolled in District health plans?

Dependents become ineligible for myriad reasons, including changes in marital status, step child/ren from a dissolved marriage, legal guardianship, student status, death, emancipated minors, etc. The District is able to track certain events, such as children reaching age 26, but many other events, such as court orders and deaths, are known only to affected individuals.

My tax return lists me as the spouse, but this letter says to send the tax return showing my spouse as dependent. Will this be an issue?

No, Benefits Administration will look at the spousal relationship on the tax return.

I am divorced, but the court ordered me to provide medical coverage for my ex-spouse. I did not report my divorce because of this. Was this a mistake?

Yes, a divorced spouse, regardless of court order, is not eligible for medical coverage. To comply with the court order, you will need to pay for your spouse’s medical coverage out of your own pocket. S/he may be eligible for COBRA coverage.

I provide support for my 12-year-old grandson and claim him on my tax return. Shouldn’t this qualify him as a dependent?

No, your grandson does not qualify as a dependent simply because you claim him on your tax return. You must have legal guardianship of your grandson, which then qualifies him as a dependent.

I am requesting copies of my children’s birth certificates and may need more time. Can I get an extension without losing benefits for children?

Yes, contact Benefits Administration and explain your situation to get an extension.

I forgot to inform Health Benefits Administration of my legal separation two years ago. Will I be billed for the two years I inadvertently kept my spouse on as a dependent?

At this time, there are no penalties for having carried ineligible dependents. However, potential consequences will be discussed in the future at a Health Benefits Committee meeting.

FAQ (Cont.)

I do not want to divulge my personal financial information on the documents I submit. Can I black out that data?

Yes, the District says you may use a black marker to hide personal financial data, as well as your Social Security number, on your tax return before submission.

What happens to the documents I submit?

Benefits Administration will retain an electronic copy of your documents, stored to ensure restricted access and security. The paper copies will be kept until the audit is completed and then destroyed.

For additional information, contact Benefits Administration at 213.241.4262.

Congratulations to the 365 member LAUSD/Beyond the Bell (BTB) All District Honor Band for marching in it's 45th Rose Parade and 5th Martin Luther King, Jr. Parade. Students came from over 55 high schools to represent the District. This past Monday, the band was featured on Channel 7 along with Superintendent Michelle King, LAUSD Board Members Dr. George McKenna, Scott Schmerelson, and Steve Zimmer, and BTB Senior Executive Director Al Cortés. The band is under the direction of Tony White, Coordinator, BTB Music and Entertainment Education, and retired principal Art Duardo.

The School Report Card Reference Guide, which contains information for sharing with parents, may be viewed at <http://achieve.lausd.net/Page/8391>.

CEP AND PROVISION 2 SCHOOLS CAN CONTINUE TO GENERATE FUTURE REVENUE

In 2013, Governor Brown signed the new Local Control Funding Formula (LCFF) into law, significantly changing how public schools are funded. The change requires school districts to submit parent/guardian income information, which is used to allocate resources based on a multitiered funding model. Districts with higher concentrations of poverty, foster youth, and English learners are funded at a higher level.

In 2014-2015, the District reset all schools to a single four-year cycle for the collection of income information. The meal application, collected annually, is the source of information for pricing schools. The Household Income Form (HIF) is used for CEP and Provision 2 schools. It is only collected every fourth year except for new students who may submit a HIF in the year they enroll.

HIF (Cont.)

CEP and Provision 2 schools are strongly encouraged to continue to collect the HIF from every new student who enrolls this school year. The first year the student enrolls is the District's only opportunity to capture potential LCFF funding until we begin a new four-year cycle in 2018-19. For a list of students new to your school this year who are missing forms, go to misisadhoc@lausd.net and click on the Dashboard link. All forms should be submitted to the Office of Data and Accountability, 16th floor.

If your school needs additional HIF forms, please contact Danna Escalante at dme74491@lausd.net and copy Jean Brown at jean.brown@lausd.net.
