Week of December 11, 2017

GROUND ZERO

AALA does not pretend to know the awesome responsibility and decision-making process when determining if schools should be closed due to an imminent danger. However, AALA's middle managers in the field certainly do know what is in the best interests of the students and staff they lead. This week's tragic fires illustrate an opportunity for the District to reexamine how decisions were made to close some schools and not others. It appears from the emails, texts, and calls AALA received that middle managers were not consulted or even a part of the decision-making process. Consequently, frustration and confusion ensued, further demoralizing the administrative ranks. And, while we appreciate the action of Acting Superintendent Vivian Ekchian to finally close affected schools on Thursday and Friday for the health and safety of staff and students, we must allow the voices from the field to be heard and see how the actions of the District are perceived. Below are some of the comments received in the AALA office on Tuesday and Wednesday of this week.

- Half our staff is absent today. The students and teachers are coughing. I have already lost my voice. This is a clear message from the District about how they feel about the health of its constituents.
- What about the smoke we are inhaling all day? I would love for someone with power from Central Office to stay and inhale what I inhaled today and will inhale tomorrow (Wednesday) if the school is not closed.
- I have not heard from the District in hours! Most of my students were checked out by their parents. Some teachers live in Santa Clarita; others live in Sylmar and are being evacuated. Attendance is dismal given the circumstances. Why then has the District not made the determination to close the school on Wednesday? Please tell the District schools in the Northeast need to be closed on Wednesday.
- We need to shut down schools tomorrow (Wednesday)! The writing is on the wall! It is 5:40 p.m. and I have yet to hear from the District!
- Support staff members responsible for ensuring student safety are exposed to unsafe air quality all day, and have complained of eye and lung irritation caused by the incessant smoke. Why aren't all schools in LDNW and LDNE closed? The District talks about family but no real family member would send their loved ones into the unsafe situation school administrators, teachers, staff, and students are being sent into tomorrow.
- The District's decision to only close certain schools (on Wednesday) and NOT communicating the decision to principals resulted in chaos mode! At opening, close to 50% of the student body was absent along with four staff members. Shortly thereafter, parents started arriving to check out the other 50%. This created unnecessary stress and frustration for everyone.

AALA is in receipt of photographs from administrators at schools in the vicinity of the fires that remained opened because they did not fall within the boundaries of the mandatory evacuation area. The pictures are harrowing, showing ash and soot on the interior floors and inside the windowsills. As an added bonus, front-line managers are forced to tacitly defend the District for its decision-making process while having to swallow the ire and abuse from parents, and their condemnation for what they perceive as the District's irresponsible behavior.

In the words of Margaret Wheatley: "Without reflection, we go blindly on our way, creating more unintended consequences, and failing to achieve anything useful." It is therefore important to reflect on the interconnectedness of the Los Angeles Unified School District and its over 700 square miles to learn and achieve something useful:

- Input from front-line managers must be solicited to arrive at the best decision possible to ensure the health and safety of their school communities. They are in the trenches at GROUND ZERO!
- The culture and climate of fear and retaliation has to dramatically improve so front-line managers can communicate their hopes and fears directly to their supervisors rather than using the voice of AALA as a conduit.
- The Palisades may seem geographically far from Sylmar. However, the wind patterns had a similar or equal impact on the health and safety of the Palisades community due to the smoke and ashes.
- District employees live and drive from most every conceivable location in this great metropolis. Might it have been more prudent to close all schools?
- How can more timely updates and decisions get to the hands of the District's front-line managers?
- Recognize there is a chasm between the words District leaders constantly use when addressing employees like "love," "family," "valued employee" and how overall employees actually feel—not valued nor loved, and increasingly tired of the dysfunctional family.

U.S. GRADUATION RATES CONTINUE TO INCREASE

Mirroring the LAUSD trend, the national graduation rate reached an all-time high of 84 percent in 2015-16, the fifth straight year of increases, and one percentage point higher than the previous year. Published by the National Center for Education Statistics, the rate is based on the number of freshmen who earn a diploma in four years. Even more encouraging than the overall increase is that all groups of students showed improvements. Low-income, English learners, Black, Hispanic, and special education students rose at least one percentage point as well. However, large graduation rate gaps do exist. More than 14 percent of Asian students graduate than Black students, and low-income students lag behind by six points.

Wide variations among schools still exist, with 12 percent of all of the country's high schools considered to have low graduation rates under the Every Student Succeeds Act – with less than 67 percent earning a diploma. Some question if rates have been inflated by the use of computer-based programs, independent study, or home schooling. Other question if schools improve their numbers by not counting all students or sending those at risk to alternative schools. However, the 2017 Building a Grad Nation report, authored by Civic Enterprises and the Everyone Graduates Center at Johns Hopkins University, and released annually in partnership with the Alliance for Excellent Education and America's Promise Alliance, concluded that the national rate is not inflated. But, it did find that six unnamed states had a pattern of increasing rates by using some of the tactics mentioned above and noted that "while inappropriately removing students from cohorts may be a cause of inflated graduation in some individual school districts, it is likely not an issue for the national trend of rising graduation rates."

Congratulations

Van Nuys High School's student newspaper, The Mirror, received two awards at the National Scholastic Press Association's (NSPA) Fall National High School Journalism Convention in Dallas, TX, last month. This recognition makes The Mirror one of the country's top high school publications and the only one in California to win this distinction. NSPA is a nonprofit educational association based in Minneapolis, MN, that provides journalism education services to students, teachers, media advisers, and others and promotes the standards and ethics of good journalism as accepted and practiced by print, broadcast, and electronic media in the United States. Annually, NSPA gives individual awards to student-produced media in six categories: Story of the Year, Multimedia Story of the Year; Broadcast Story of the Year; Picture of the Year; Design of the Year; and Cartooning. The Van Nuys High School newspaper placed third in the Design of the Year for its December layout, All Hail the Hater-in-Chief, and received honorable mention for the article How Race Plays a Role in College Admissions. Congratulations to the students, the journalism teaching staff, Principal Yolanda Gardea, and the entire school community.

LAUSD ADMINISTRATIVE SERVICES CREDENTIAL PROGRAM

Did you know the Professional Leadership and Learning Development Branch (PLLD) is in the business of helping AALA members clear their administrative credentials? The Los Angeles Administrative Services Credential (LAASC) Program affords:

- ✓ A real world, job-embedded opportunity to tackle a problem of practice, and arrive at a systematic approach to effectively address persistent issues at schools.
- ✓ High-quality professional learning, an expanded professional network through participation in coaching conversations, professional development, and induction days.
- ✓ A tuition-free program at no cost to every participant unlike institutions of higher learning that charge north of $10,000.

Acting Superintendent Ekchian attended the culminating conference and congratulated the cohorts, noting the problems of practice and their approach were akin to doctoral dissertations, and that many of the solutions to improve student achievement were diligently documented for implementation and for others to replicate as promising practices. Take a moment to peruse the thoughtful, research-based approach to the myriad problems of practice by clicking HERE. As importantly, write a congratulatory note to the pioneering participants in the inaugural Cohorts 1 and 2.

Accolades are in order for Board Member Scott Schmerelson for personally congratulating the candidates and sharing his wisdom with them and also to Dr. Jose Cantu, Assistant Chief Human Resources Officer, Ileana M. Dávalos, Director, Dr. Marco Nava, Administrative Coordinator, and the entire PLLD team.

AALA encourages the Superintendent and the Board of Education to increase funds as there are hundreds of AALA administrators on the District's waiting list wanting to enthusiastically participate in LAASC. There is no better use of funds than assisting talented administrators to clear their administrative credentials while combining a problem-solving research approach with a solid foundation embedded in professional learning standards.

JOIN THE AALA ANGELS

In this season of giving, don't forget our LAUSD students need your help to achieve their educational goals. You, too, can become an angel, simply complete the online form (click HERE) and email to AALA President Juan A. Flecha at juan.flecha@lausd.net or fax to the office, 213.484.0201.

There are school-site and nonschool-site categories, special awards for educators and community partners, and two student scholarships. Please complete a nomination form (or two) and help ACSA Region 16 acknowledge our amazing stakeholders. The deadline has been extended to Friday, December 8, 2017. There are two ways to submit: ACSA Awards Online or through a PDF.
